Part Two :Comprehension*(30 marks)*Read the following passage carefully, then answer the questions that follow :

Helen Keller was an American author, lecturer who was able to overcome great physical hardships . She suffered a serious illness and she became blind , deaf and dumb before she was two years old . However , she didn't give up hope . She struggled very hard in order to live an active and useful life .

In her first book , " The Story of my Life ," she tells us of her early childhood which was at first gloomy and sad . She was desperate until something happened which completely changed her life . The third of March 1887 was a day which she would remember for a long time .

On that day she met her teacher and guide Miss Sullivan for the first time . Like Helen. Miss Sullivan herself had lost her sense of sight when she was young , but she later recovered it . She was perhaps the best person to understand the problems of those who were blind . She made up her mind to stand by Helen and take care of her education .

Miss Sullivan was a very loving friend who began to teach Helen how to spell simple words . Miss Sullivan worked patiently , step by step . She would put an object like a doll in Helen's hand . Helen would then feel the object and write the letters on her own hand over and over again . She then moved on to reading words written in small squares with raised letters . She learnt that every word has special meaning . Every day she improved , until finally she was able to read books written in Braille .
