Martin Luther King was born in Atlanta Georgia in 1929. From an early age, he was aware that black people were not treated as equal citizens in America.

Most blacks lived in poverty in the richest nation on earth . They earned only half of the white people's wages and many could not vote. In many places the blacks were separated from the whites, there were shops and restaurants that only white people could use . Even on the buses , black people had to stay in the back of the bus .

Martin Luther King believed that these things were not right. He believed that the only way to make society more equal was by peaceful protest . For example, he organized a bus boycott which meant that the black people refused to use the buses until they were allowed to sit in any part of the bus.

Many similar protests were organized by Martin Luther King. He never used violence but always looked for a peaceful way of protesting. However, some people who did not like what he was doing, used violence against him; his home was bombed. He still believed, though, violence and hatred could only be overcome by love and forgiveness,

In 1964 he was awarded Nobel Peace Prize, and in 1965 all black people were allowed to vote.
